Explanation and Commentary of Jeremiah 17:9.
The heart of a person can be corrupt, or it can be good and helpful, depending on what has been put into it, and whether it is being led by the truth. Human beings are created in the image of God with the faculty of reason.

But the human heart is not only deceitful but also desperately wicked. By following their heart without judging it by the measure of God's truth, many people have been led to disobedience, rebellion, and eventually great sorrow. I'd say the advice to "always follow your heart" is not good advice at all. God Has Given Us a New Heart

What is the human heart like? Theologians and philosophers have attempted to address this question, not just in the abstract, but concretely in personal, as well as social and political, dimensions. Patrick Downey explores the biblical writings of Genesis and the Hebrew prophet Jeremiah, the Greek tragedies, Plato, Aristotle, and political philosophers--such as Rousseau, Hobbes, Nietzsche and Ren Girard--to seek answers to this profound question. Recognizing our resistance to know the truth about our own hearts, Downey calls his readers to join with these thinkers in the search for truth and

Mean? Many have heard of Reformed theology, but may not be certain what it is. Some references to it have been positive, some negative. It appears to be important, and they'd like to know more about it. But they want a full, understandable explanation, not a simplistic one. What Is Reformed Theology? is an accessible introduction to beliefs that have been immensely influential in the evangelical church. In this insightful book, R. C. Sproul walks readers through the foundations of the Reformed doctrine and explains how the Reformed belief is centered on God, based on God's Word, and committed to
